

Reading Questions

How does it work?

1. Choose a fiction book that interests you. If you are stuck, look at the recommended reading list.
2. Read for at least 20 minutes three times a week.
3. Talk to someone about what you've read. Use the reading questions below to help you keep that conversation going!

TIP: the best answers are ones which are developed and thoughtful so take your time and go into as much detail as possible!

Reading Questions...

- a) Tell me what happened in the bit you just read.
- b) What do you think about the characters?
- c) What made the characters want to do that?
- d) Why did the other characters react in that way?
- e) Have they changed in any way from earlier in the book?
- f) What makes one character different to another character?
- g) What was the best part of the pages you just read? Why?
- h) How did you feel when you read that part? Why?
- i) In your head, what could you imagine when you read that part? Why?
- j) Are there any words you didn't understand? What do you think they might mean, given what's going on around them? (Remember to check with a dictionary!)
- k) What has been the most dramatic part of the story so far? Why?
- l) Which character do you most admire? Why?
- m) Which character is the most dangerous? Why?
- n) What do you think will happen next? Why?

Talk about at least four of these questions each time you read!
